Capturing the volunteering landscape at ASME to lower barriers to volunteering

ECLIPSE Class 2023
Project

ASME relies on volunteers to share their expertise in the service of standards development, dissemination of technical knowledge and improving safety and the quality of life.

- ASME has a committed network of volunteers serving across the organization, but it’s not always easy for prospective volunteers to find a way in.
- Meanwhile, some ASME volunteer units struggle to find new volunteers to serve in their committees and groups or to keep loyal volunteers engaged.

Purpose

Identify and interview currently engaged volunteers and past volunteers who stopped being active to map volunteer pathways and increase volunteer engagement.

Desired Outcome

- Map diverse volunteer pathways at ASME and new pathways if we come across them in our research/survey.
- Share recommendations on how to promote opportunities to the right audiences.
- Share best practices for retaining volunteers from successful groups.
- Identify top barriers with respective ideas on how to address them.

<td>At the end of Q3, 11 workstreams focused on attracting, developing, retaining, and engaging a highly performing ASME staff are progressing well towards FY23 milestones. The Q3 efforts of these workstreams included the finalized recommendations for Hybrid Workplace, closeout of the Enterprise Training recommendations and roadmap, start of an RFP process for prospective Alternative Talent Sources vendors, trainings for Portfolio Rationalization and Sunsetting, onboarding of a vendor to support Strategic Communications, and continued progress across the other workstreams. Findings from the Voice of Employee workstream indicated a strong correlation between employee satisfaction and engagement on Enterprise Goals. The Central Transformation Function continues to make extensive progress on tools and processes to streamline enterprise goals formation and management. The Culture of Innovation workstream has completed the vast majority of its work for the FY after evaluating 10 accelerator submissions and selecting three to fund moving forward. This Enterprise Goals is currently projected to finish at Upper Threshold by the end of the FY.</td>
